

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

In a digital camera including an electronic flash device using a light-emitting diode as a flash light source, white balance correction is performed by using a white balance correction value corresponding to a color temperature of light actually emitted 5 from the electronic flash device.